

How to host Bad Influence at your own house concert.

House concerts are becoming a popular venue for independent touring bands today, and some of our favorite gigs of the last year were performed in somebody's home. They are a great way to throw a party or mingle with musicians in a comfortable, casual setting—your home!

The full band as well as a trio (no drums) is available to play house shows. Please feel free to contact us and we'll make it happen.

What you need to:

- 30 guests minimum and a suggested donation of $10-20 (depending on band size).
- Enough space for your guests with comfortable seating.
- A space for the band with easily accessible electricity and adequate light. For a trio, an area of 10' x 10' will provide plenty of space.
- Food & Drink – Not required, but encourage your guests to bring snacks to share!
- For shows more than two hours away from Washington, DC, we may need a place to stay for the night.
